Learning from the Best Performing Companies

Learning Nugget - Development

Live 2-hour inspirational online session

Time to focus on "what moves the needle most" in development. This is one out of 16 Learning Nuggets. A 2-hour inspirational session where we present "Best practice in people management" through pitfalls, best practice, metric & target ranges and business cases.

Our Learning Nuggets represent the most significant and value creating best practice in people management. The Nuggets are developed by analysing more than 1500 companies worldwide, every year, and are based on more than 350 metrics and 4000 activities including business cases. Get the most important and valuable knowledge about how the top performers are performing people management. In every process there are only a handful of things which make the significant difference. This knowledge we gather every year and package for our clients. Each Nugget consists of a 2-hour session where we present, interpret, and discuss the significant top performer practice.

Best Practice

The most significant practice is portrayed, and questions answered like (examples):

- What makes personal development plans the decisive factor in efforts of high performing companies?
- How do most successful organizations leverage technology for development (and what are the limits)?
- What exactly is the role of the concept of employability in the lived practice of top performers?
- How do top performers get top returns on their development efforts via focusing on learning transfer?
- Which elements of "old school development" are still applied at successful companies (because they work)?
- Give or take: Who is responsible in driving development efforts - managers or employees?
- What is the practice during times of crises - is development something to save on?

Metric and target ranges

We give you the most important metrics to keep track on (going from old-world reporting to high value metrics) including the target ranges most successful organizations reach.

Business cases

We show why impact and top line focus is even in special times more important than pure cost focus. You will get to know the financial impact the process has on the business.
