Learning from the Best Performing Companies

Learning Nugget - Internal mobility

Live 2-hour inspirational online session

Time to focus on "what moves the needle most" in internal mobility. This is one out of 16 Learning Nuggets. A 2-hour inspirational session where we present "Best practice in people management" through pitfalls, best practice, metric & target ranges and business cases.

Our Learning Nuggets represent the most significant and value creating best practice in people management. The Nuggets are developed by analysing more than 1500 companies worldwide, every year, and are based on more than 350 metrics and 4000 activities including business cases. Get the most important and valuable knowledge about how the top performers are performing people management. In every process there are only a handful of things which make the significant difference. This knowledge we gather every year and package for our clients. Each Nugget consists of a 2-hour session where we present, interpret, and discuss the significant top performer practice.

Best Practice

The most significant practice is portrayed, and questions answered like (examples):

- What are the main success drivers of an internal job market at high performing companies?
- What is the link between internal mobility and international mobility to leverage both concepts for high performing companies?
- Is there room at top performers for employees whose preference is not to move internally?
- What is the role of the direct supervisor when an employee wants to apply for an internal opening? Does he/she have to approve?
- How do successful companies view failure in case of internal moves?
- What is the impact of the compensation system for internal mobility?

Metric and target ranges

We give you the most important metrics to keep track on (going from old-world reporting to high value metrics) including the target ranges most successful organizations reach.

Business cases

We show why impact and top line focus is even in special times more important than pure cost focus. You will get to know the financial impact the process has on the business.
